

IRCAD and INVIVOX partner to provide medical training to surgeons from around the world

Strasbourg, Bordeaux – IRCAD, the international institute for the training of surgeons established in Strasbourg in 1994, and Bordeaux-based startup INVIVOX, a platform that provides global visibility to healthcare professional training programs, have announced the signing of a partnership contract which will highlight the visibility of IRCAD courses.

“Over the years, we have become a worldwide reference for minimally invasive surgical training. In 2018, our Strasbourg center welcomed over 6,200 surgeons, trained by an exceptional team of 640 expert surgeons in their given specialties. IRCAD’s international prestige led to the opening of twin training institutes in Taiwan, followed by the state of Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, the Lebanon, with institutes soon to open in Rwanda and China. Partnering with Invivox, a stakeholder in new technologies, is a wonderful opportunity that will give more visibility to our course offer,” explained Prof. Jacques Marescaux, IRCAD founder.

Having a opened a brand-new 2,200 m2 building devoted to surgical robotics, IRCAD will soon be boasting two surgical robotics platforms. IRCAD’s ambition is to position itself as the worldwide reference center for surgical robotics training and research.

“Medical training for surgeons is a global challenge. The Ma Santé 2020 law, adopted by French members of parliament last March, is a concrete example of this. It enshrines the principle of physicians having to re-certify their skills. IRCAD has 25 years of experience in this field; our institute offers training programs that combine live procedures, hands-on instruction and workshops with experts, in order to teach new techniques that are adapted to the needs of surgeons in the operating room,” added Dr. Bernard d'Allemagne, IRCAD head of teaching.

In 2000, to make its courses available internationally, IRCAD had already created the WeBSurg virtual university for minimally invasive surgery. Becoming the leading site for on-line education for minimally invasive surgery, it is now translated into 7 languages, is entirely free, and has 380,000 users.

“Our collaboration with IRCAD marks an important step in the development and international credibility of InvivoX. We are very proud to be able to add the wealth and quality of training programs offered by IRCAD-Strasbourg to our existing catalog of InvivoX training modules,” adds Julien Delpech, co-founder of the InvivoX platform.

An ambassador of French excellence, IRCAD aims to train more surgeons in Strasbourg or international IRCAD centers to improve surgical practices.
